

As an airline employee, I implore you NOT to allow cell phone use inflight onboard commercial aircraft for a variety of reasons. The three major reasons that the FAA should be able to agree with are:

1. Air Rage. This has been escalating over the years, and inflight cellphone use will just exacerbate the problem.
2. Potential radio interference. Even though it has not been proven, this is a chance I do not wish to take. It is MY life up there at 41,000 feet, while you are safe on the ground.
3. Terrorism. How many extra opportunities would you give a terrorist by allowing this? Again, unproven, but why take a chance?

Thank you for considering my opinions.

Jan McCarthy
Great Falls, VA